

Partnering with For-Profits in Higher Ed: An Unholy Alliance?

Ron Harichandran
Dean

University of
New Haven

TAGLIATELA
COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

MS in Data Science in San Francisco

- Univ. of New Haven partners with University Ventures in 2012 to develop an industry-oriented MS in Big Data
- Plans announced at 2013 Maker Faire in New York City

University of New Haven

TAGLIATELA COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Galvanize Joins Venture

- Galvanize becomes a partner and major shareholder in 2014
- First launch targeted in Galvanize building in San Francisco
- Director for program hired in fall 2014
- Curriculum developed in fall 2014
- Approvals by Connecticut Office of Higher Education and California Bureau of Post Secondary Education sought in 2015

| University of New Haven

The Chronicle Highlights the Program

THE CHRONICLE OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Wired Campus

The latest on tech and education.

March 20, 2015 by Casey Fabris

U. of New Haven and Upstart Coding School Team Up on Master's Program

A new breed of for-profit coding schools has emerged in recent years, largely as a skills-focused alternative to traditional higher education. Now one of them has joined forces with a traditional university to build a master's program.

University of New Haven

TAGLIATELA COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Creative Learning Environment

University of New Haven

TAGLIATELA COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Creative Learning Environment

University of New Haven

TAGLIATELA COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Program Characteristics and History

- SF faculty are NTT UNH faculty: 6 full-time, 2 part-time
- Cohort students take 2 courses in every 7 week minimester
- Cohorts: 9 in March 2015, 20 in Aug. 2015, 13 in Jan. 2016
- Internship and industry-based capstone design included
- 12 month program, including summer
- 26% female
- First cohort graduates in April 2016

| University of New Haven

Why UNH and What is the Future?

- Univ. of New Haven is a medium-sized private university in Connecticut that is highly entrepreneurial
- UNH has educated princesses in Saudi Arabia, engineers from Israel, and law enforcement officers around the world
- UNH is home to renowned forensic scientist Henry Lee
- Launch of MS in Data Science program in Seattle expected in fall 2017

| University of New Haven

Come Join Me for a Tour

- 5:00 pm today
- Galvanize/Univ. of New Haven
44 Tahoma Street
San Francisco CA 94106
- My cell: (203) 376-4326

University of New Haven

TAGLIATELA COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING